

Client Profile: Mid-size auto parts manufacturer.

Application: Each phase of manufacturing requires creating a large number of varying management reports.

Problem: With each new project, a total of more than one hundred different types of reports are generated and the reports must be available to various department executives at all times. As the company grew in size, storing and retrieving these reports became unmanageable.

Solution: MICROTEK installed a networked imaging system which allows remote viewing access over the company network, Additional ERM (Enterprise Report Management) software was added which lets users view computerized reports which are currently stored in the corporate server
