Almost all of today's systems for creating and managing digital documents are based on open, non-proprietary formats. However, some of the early digital document imaging systems were designed using proprietary image and data formats. A number of the imaging software companies, for a variety of reasons, ceased to exist or were acquired by others resulting in some "orphaned" systems with little or no support available.

Microtek has developed processes for exporting the image and data files of these older proprietary systems and reformatting them for importing into current systems.

Minolta MI3MS System Conversions

Microtek is particularly experienced in converting Minolta MI3MS digital imaging systems in order to import into newer imaging systems.
